HESTIA EDUCATION GROUP, LLC, et al.,
Plaintiffs,
v.
JOHN KING,
Defendant.

Case No. 15-cv-01463-DMR

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFFS'
MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE
MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

Re: Dkt. Nos. 52, 54, 56

Plaintiffs Hestia Education Group, LLC dba Blush School of Makeup (“Blush”) and Manhal Mansour (“Mansour”) (collectively “Plaintiffs”) move for leave to file a motion for reconsideration of the court’s January 29, 2016 order granting in part and denying in part their motion for discovery (Docket No. 45, “January 29 Order”). [Docket No. 52 (Pls.’ Mot.).] Plaintiffs subsequently filed three supplemental exhibits in support of their motion. [Docket Nos. 54 and 56.]

Plaintiffs’ underlying suit against the Secretary of the United States Department of Education in his official capacity (“Department” or “Defendant”) seeks review under the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”) of the Department’s denial of Blush’s application for initial certification to participate as an eligible institution in the Title IV student financial aid programs.

I. Legal Standard

Civil Local Rule 7-9 provides that “[b]efore the entry of a judgment adjudicating all of the claims and the rights and liabilities of all the parties in a case, any party may make a motion before a Judge requesting that the Judge grant the party leave to file a motion for reconsideration of any interlocutory order . . . . No party may notice a motion for reconsideration without first obtaining leave of Court to file the motion.” N.D. Civ. L.R. 7-9(a). A motion for reconsideration may be

1 made on one of three grounds: (1) a material difference in fact or law exists from that which was 2 presented to the court, which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, the party applying for 3 reconsideration did not know at the time of the order for which reconsideration is sought; (2) the 4 emergence of new material facts or a change of law; or (3) a manifest failure by the court to 5 consider material facts or dispositive legal arguments presented before such order. N.D. Civ. L.R.
6 7-9(b)(1)- (3). The moving party may not reargue any written or oral argument previously 7 asserted to the court. N.D. Civ. L.R. 7-9(c). Whether to grant leave to file a motion for 8 reconsideration under Rule 7-9 is committed to the court's sound discretion. See Montebueno
9 Mktg., Inc. v. Del Monte Corp.—USA, 570 F. App'x 675, 676 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Bias v.
10 Moynihan, 508 F.3d 1212, 1223(9th Cir. 2007)).

11 Plaintiffs seek reconsideration on two bases: 1) “a manifest failure by the court to consider 12 material facts or dispositive legal arguments presented before such order” regarding Plaintiff 13 Mansour’s de facto debarment claim, and 2) “the emergence of new material facts” regarding the 14 alleged “Elite Scheme.”

15 II. Factual and Procedural Background

16 Plaintiff Blush is a private, post-secondary makeup school located in San Francisco. Blush
17 is owned by Hestia Education Group, LLC. Plaintiff Mansour owns 100% of Hestia Education
18 Group LLC, is the Chief Executive Officer of Blush, and serves on Blush’s Board of Directors.

19 On January 3, 2014, Blush filed an application with the Department seeking initial 20 certification of eligibility to participate in the Title IV federal student loan and grant program. The 21 Department denied Blush’s application in a letter dated February 14, 2014, and affirmed the denial 22 in subsequent letters, the last of which was issued on February 15, 2015.

23 Plaintiffs filed this lawsuit seeking review of the Department’s denial under the APA, 24 alleging that the denial of Blush’s application was arbitrary and capricious, and also resulted in a
25 de facto debarment of Mansour. Plaintiffs moved for discovery under the APA and on Mansour’s 26 de facto debarment claim. The court granted Plaintiffs’ motion for discovery in part. The court 27 found that the declarations of Martina Fernandez-Rosario and Donna Wittman indicated that the 28 Department had relied on extra-record information in denying Blush’s application, specifically the

1 role of Cristina Grimm<sup>1</sup> in Elite, a cosmetology school once owned by Mansour. January 29
2 Order at 8-9. The court ordered the Department to supplement the Administrative Record (“AR”)
3 with the materials it relied on regarding Grimm’s involvement with Elite’s failure to comply with 4 applicable Title IV statutes and regulations. Id. at 9. The court also permitted Plaintiffs to 5 conduct one-hour depositions of Fernandez-Rosario and Wittman, restricted to this topic. Id. The 6 court otherwise denied Plaintiffs’ motion for discovery under the APA and denied discovery on 7 Mansour’s de facto debarment claim. [Docket No. 45 (Order on Mot. for Discovery).]

8 Plaintiffs now move the court for leave to file a motion for reconsideration of its January 9 29, 2016 order denying discovery on Mansour’s de facto debarment claim. Plaintiffs argue that 10 the court failed to consider persuasive legal arguments. Plaintiffs also seek to expand the amount 11 and scope of discovery that the court permitted on the Plaintiffs’ APA claim. Plaintiffs argue that 12 new facts have emerged related to the Department’s determination that it likely would not approve
13 continued Title IV eligibility for a separate school that Grimm plans to buy, San Francisco College
14 of Cosmetology. [Docket No. 52 (Pls.’ Mot.).]

15 III. Analysis

16 A. The Court’s Consideration of Legal Arguments Regarding Mansour’s De 17 Facto Debarment Claim

18 Plaintiffs argue that the court failed to consider “persuasive legal arguments that if 19 followed by the Court would be dispositive on the de facto debarment issue.” Pls.’ Mot. at 1.
20 Plaintiffs argue that the court erred by giving too much weight to Nat'l Career Coll., Inc. v.
21 Spellings, 371 F. App'x 794 (9th Cir. 2010) (“NCC”), and by not giving greater weight to the 22 “better reasoned” authorities that Plaintiffs cited.

23 Plaintiffs’ contention that the court erred in its weighing of “persuasive” authorities is 24 nothing more than a thinly veiled attempt to reargue its original motion. This fails to meet the 25 standard for reconsideration based on “manifest failure by the court to consider ... dispositive legal 26 arguments.” N.D. Civ. L.R. 7-9(b)(2) (emphasis added).

27 Plaintiffs concede that the court accurately noted that although the opinion in Nat'l Career

28<sup>1</sup> Grimm is Mansour’s wife.

1     Coll. is “unpublished and thus non-precedential,” the court “properly may consider the Ninth 2     Circuit’s reasoning.” Pls.’ Mot. at 2 (citing Order at 11 n.10). Plaintiffs acknowledge that there is 3     no binding Ninth Circuit authority addressing the elements of a de facto debarment claim, yet
4     attempt to reargue the merits of their original motion—in direct contradiction of Local Rule 7-5     9(c). See N.D. Civ. L.R. 7-9(c) (authorizing the imposition of sanctions where the motion for 6     leave to file a motion for reconsideration repeats arguments previously made to the Court).
7     Plaintiffs characterize their motion as “referring” to arguments previously raised, rather than 8     rearguing them. Pls.’ Mot. at 1 n.1. However, the persuasiveness of the authorities cited by 9     Plaintiffs and Defendant regarding the legal standard for de facto debarment was squarely before 10    the court when it decided Plaintiffs’ original discovery motion. See Pls.’ Mot. at 3 (citing Pls.’ 11    Discovery Brief and Reply [Docket Nos. 28 and 33.]). The court heard and considered Plaintiffs’
12    argument about the persuasiveness of the authority relating to Mansour’s de facto debarment claim 13    at the November 12, 2015 hearing. See Docket No. 48 (Nov. 12, 2015 Hr’g Tr.).

14       Plaintiffs’ failure to comply with Civil Local Rule 7–9 constitutes grounds for denying 15    their motion. See Tri–Valley CAREs v. U.S. Dept. of Energy, 671 F.3d 1113, 1131 (9th Cir. 2012)
16    (“Denial of a motion as the result of a failure to comply with local rules is well within a district 17    court’s discretion .”); Zepeda v. PayPal, Inc., No. C 10-1668 SBA, 2013 WL 2147410, at *2 18    (N.D. Cal. May 15, 2013) (noting that failure to comply with local rules sufficient grounds for 19    denying motion for leave to file motion for reconsideration). Furthermore, because these 20    arguments were heard and considered by the court prior to the January 29, 2016 discovery order, 21    they are not properly the subject for a motion for reconsideration.

22              B.     New Facts Regarding Grimm and the San Francisco College of Cosmetology

23       Plaintiffs argue that new facts regarding Grimm’s application for continued Title IV
24    eligibility for the San Francisco College of Cosmetology (“SFCC”) are material to their motion for 25    discovery.

26       Grimm had intended to purchase SFCC from its current owner, and applied for pre-27    acquisition approval for continued Title IV eligibility for the school under her ownership in 28    September 2015. The Department issued its determination, by letter dated March 3, 2016, that it

1 would likely deny the proposed application for continued Title IV eligibility for SFCC if Grimm
2 became the owner, president, and CEO. Pls.' Mot. at 6-9; Supplemental Ex. 3 [Docket No. 54-1.]

3 While these facts may be relevant to claims filed on behalf of SFCC or Grimm, such 4 claims are not a part of this case. Plaintiffs have not shown that they are relevant, let alone
5 "material," to the present case, which involves Blush's Title IV application and Mansour's
6 debarment claim. N.D. Civ. L.R. 7-9(b)(2); see Compl. [Docket No. 1] at 13-15.

7 Plaintiffs are incorrect when they state that "in order for the Court to determine whether 8 the decision making process leading to the Blush denial was customary and fair, rather than 9 irregular and arbitrary and capricious, there should be an opportunity for sufficient discovery
10 concerning that decision-making process." Pls.' Mot. at 9. This is not the standard for discovery 11 under the APA. As laid out in the court's discovery order, judicial review of agency action in 12 APA challenges is usually limited to review of the administrative record. Friends of the Earth v.
13 Hintz, 800 F.2d 822, 828 (9th Cir. 1986). Because a court's review of an agency decision under 14 the APA is limited to the administrative record, discovery generally is not permitted in such cases, 15 with four narrow exceptions, when: "(1) it is necessary to determine whether the agency has 16 considered all relevant factors and explained its decision, (2) the agency has relied on documents
17 not in the record, (3) supplementing the record is necessary to explain technical terms or complex
18 subject matter, or (4) plaintiffs make a showing of bad faith." City of Las Vegas, Nev. v. F.A.A., 19 570 F.3d 1109, 1116 (9th Cir. 2009). Plaintiffs fail to explain how facts regarding SFCC are 20 relevant to this case, much less how they fit into any of the four narrow exceptions for discovery
21 under the APA.

22 III. CONCLUSION

23 For the reasons stated above, Defendants' request for leave to file a motion for 24 reconsideration is denied.
